The place is an lifeal one for training, and the clear air and good road probably caused the two racing men to forget for the moment, and away they flew down the Boulevard. Crossing Bedford-ave. a bicycle policeman saw the scorchers, and he called to them to stop. They not becefting the warning, the policeman jumped on his bicycle and gave pursait, and the three were soon out of slath over the hill. Several minutes later the two riders came back and few by on their way to the cycle path to get to the Manhattan Beach track. A few minutes later the policeman pedalled up, perspiring freely. When asked if he had caught the scorchers he shock his head sadly. "Do you know who they were" asked a bystander. "No." said the policeman, who was just getting his breath. "They were Taylor and Titus, and they probably did not know that you were chasing them at all."

Anderson claims to have ridden behind a comotive in the West last year in one minutes of three seconds. Murphy has claimed for years at, with proper pacing, he would be able to ride mile in a minute or less.

The handicap pool tournament, which has been one of the leading attractions at the clubhouse of the South Brooklyn Wheelmen for the last few months, is now complete, and valuable prizes will soon be presented to the winners. James Langdon, playing from scratch, won first prize easily, but the battle for second and third was close from the the battle for second and third was close from the beginning, and resulted in a tie between J. E. Peace and P. J. Dreher. The game between them to decide which should take the second prize was won by Peace by the narrow margin of 4 police, and the closeness of the game made it a fitting wind-up of one of the most successful tournaments ever given by the club. The standing of the contestants at the finish of the games, showing the handleaps and the games won and lost, is as follows: Langdon, scratch, 75 points, won 12 lost 1; Deace, 59, won 2, lost 4; Dreher, 46, won 9, lost 4; Hinson, 65, won 8, lost 5; Gray, 50, won 7, lost 6; Pallek, 69, won 7, lost 6; Kirkland, 65, won 7, lost 6; Deninger, 55, won 8, lost 7; Eno, 79, won 6, lost 7; Anderson, 46, won 5, lost 8; Hamilton, 65, won 5, lost 8; Stratton, 49, won 3, lost 10, and Ruth, 45, won 2, lost 11.

It requires the regulating the speed of bicycles. It requires the regulating the speed of bicycles. It requires the control list tendency of riders to exceed the lawful rate of speed. Official authorization of a road race would be a facit encouragement of this tendency and would add to the difficulties of controlling it. The crowds attracted by such a race could not be accommodated on the Drive, and would overflow the improved part of the park, to its great damage. The marks of damage inflicted in the spring would remain visible during the entire year.

Many of the racing men who are getting into condition for the outdoor season think some road work is almost indispensable at this time of the year. Many of the riders, however, consider the comfort and safety of others, and if they do much fast work on the road they generally select the early hours and some road not frequented by other iders, where they can speed to their hearts' content.
